DO YOU SPEAK CANADIAN?

Ehh	The interjection eh — as in “I know, eh?” — is popularly considered to be a marker of Canadian speech. Canadians use eh more frequently than in any other country, and also have the most varied usage of the interjection.
Double-Double	A term used to describe how you take your coffee - two teaspoons of sugar and two creams.
Loonie & Toonie	A loonie, the Canadian $1 coin, gets its name from the picture of the Canadian bird, the loon, that appears on one side of the coin. A toonie, the name for the $2 coin, gained a similar nickname to match the sound of the loonie.
Dart	Canadian slang for a cigarette.
Toque	It is pronounced toohk'. Speaking of the very cold weather over there in Canada, a toque is actually a winter hat. It's what others commonly refer to as ski hats or beanies.
